

Navigation drawers

A navigation drawer is a slide-out menu that allows users to switch between views of your app. It can hold a large number of items and is accessible from anywhere in your app. Navigation drawers show your app's top-level views, but can also provide navigation to lower-level screens. This makes them particularly suitable for complex apps.

Use navigation drawers if:

You don't want to give up the vertical screen real estate for a dedicated tab bar.

You have a large number of top-level views.

You want to provide direct access to screens on lower levels.

You want to provide quick navigation to views which don't have direct relationships between each other.

You have particularly deep navigation branches.
